Liberty First Credit Union Selects Corelation's KeyStone to Maximize Operational Efficiencies

SAN DIEGO - October 25, 2019: Less steps, single entry, and no more workarounds! After 25+ years with its current core system, Liberty First Credit Union ($293M assets; 29,000 members; Lincoln, NE) announces its decision to convert to Corelation's KeyStone platform.

"Many of our daily operations require manual entries in multiple systems, so we are looking forward to streamlining our processes with KeyStone," articulated Liberty First's CIO/SVP Information Systems Eric Erickson. "Its robust integration capability provides us with a greater selection pool of third-party vendors. That, coupled with the option of developing our own custom programs, positions us to better serve our membership."

"They [Corelation and its KeyStone core] were favored prior to the official start of our core selection process," conveyed Liberty First President/CEO Frank Wilber. "We were familiar with Corelation's organizational philosophy and KeyStone's open architecture. What makes them stand out amongst the competition are their dedication to client service and their ability to deliver relevant and complete software solutions. We know this partnership will better position Liberty First Credit Union to achieve our goal of providing world-class service to our membership."

The credit union's core conversion is scheduled for November 2020.

"As we welcome credit union partners into our Corelation family, we are reminded of how our journey started 10 years ago - open communication, transparency, and our commitment to delivering the best software with the best service," commented Corelation Chief Revenue Officer Tim Maron. "We value each of our client relationships and are grateful to partner with Liberty First Credit Union."
