Educational Systems Federal Credit Union signs with Corelation

GREENBELT, MD (April 15, 2019) – Educational Systems Federal Credit Union announces the upcoming conversion of its core system to Corelation’s KeyStone core processing solution. The anticipated conversion date is November 1, 2020.

KeyStone is a credit union-focused core processing system designed to streamline core functionality. Utilizing an industry-standard database management system that provides intricate and flexible design and architecture, Corelation leverages today’s advanced technologies with members and employees in mind. This includes an intuitive interface for employees and easy integration with third-party vendors to provide the best solutions to meet members’ needs.

“We are thrilled to be partnering with Corelation. They have exceptional technology, exceptional leadership and an exceptional team. Their commitment to credit unions is second to none, and they are aligned with our values of integrity, competence, commitment and respect,” said Chris Conway, President/CEO of Educational Systems FCU. “We believe this strategic partnership will help us fulfill our vision to be the premier financial services provider for the education community.”

Chris Conway, President/CEO of Educational Systems FCU, signs the contract with Corelation forming a strategic partnership.
