TTCU Selects Corelation's KeyStone
As the Catalyst for its Mobile-first Approach

SAN DIEGO – October 14, 2019: As the demand for digital banking and digital communication channels increase, it was vital for TTCU Federal Credit Union ($1.9B assets; 135,000 members; Tulsa, OK) to select a core processing platform well-suited for its mobile-first approach.

"To highlight some of our core search requirements, KeyStone satisfied: state-of-the-art, browser-based, and consistent positive market momentum," noted TTCU President/CEO, Tim Lyons. "But what ultimately set KeyStone apart from its competition was its open architecture. It truly is the most open core processing platform – championing our choice of third-party systems."

For TTCU, software capability was one half of the equation; selecting the best partner was the other.

"Corelation has a distinguishing reputation of having a service-oriented culture, and not only did their existing clients confirm their reputation, but we witnessed it first-hand throughout the core selection process," commented Lyons. "We welcome Corelation's collaborative approach with their credit union clients and we look forward to this partnership."

TTCU is scheduled to convert in October 2020.

"Supporting our clients through service and leading-edge technology is our top priority, for our success depends on their success," remarked Corelation President/CEO Theresa Benavidez. "We are grateful for our partnership with TTCU and are committed to upholding our company principles: reputation, relationships, and results."
