Corelation's KeyStone Singled Out by $1.1 Billion San Francisco FCU for its Compelling Open API

SAN DIEGO - November 6, 2019: While celebrating its 65th year in serving its membership, San Francisco Federal Credit Union ($1.1B assets; 47,000 members; San Francisco, CA) announces its decision in selecting Corelation's KeyStone as its future core processor. The credit union is scheduled to convert in August 2020.

Driven by its mission, San Francisco FCU is steadfast in providing financial security to its members by offering relevant products and services combined with imparting professional and authentic advice. Its increase in membership is a testimony to its member appeal and growth.

"A core system is the central source of truth for member data and we value Corelation's unwavering dedication to KeyStone," identified San Francisco FCU Chief Information Officer, Brad Morrison. "It was imperative to select a core system that could support our long-term growth objectives and provide third-party integration options."

"It's open API, KeyBridge, is by far the most powerful component of the KeyStone platform. We have options; we can engage with a third-party vendor or develop our own ancillary system. KeyBridge is above and beyond all else," added Morrison.

"From its inception, KeyStone has been designed with a person-centric focus that highlights the relationship between the member and the credit union," commented Corelation President/CEO Theresa Benavidez. "We strive to deliver powerful yet flexible core processing solutions and we are thrilled to partner with San Francisco Federal Credit Union."
